

God, we pray with those who feel cut off and excluded:
those who fear their place of belonging is less
like home;
those who worry that the little they have needs to stretch even further;

we pray for
those whose concerns are present and tangible;
and those whose worries are imagined but just as acute.

God, we pray for those we are tempted to blame.

We pray for
the leaders of our nations:
that we may give thanks for them
and together seek the common good.

We pray for
our neighbours throughout Europe,
that we may give thanks for them
and together seek the common good.

We pray for
those who see things differently,
that we may give thanks for them
and together seek the common good.

God, give us a fresh vision for the days ahead.
